I created an art project illustrating the idea of the scaffold building up to the heavens with William C. Bryant, James R. Lowell, Carlyle and myself as these builders. In my community and school, even in my state, school funding is claimed “unconstitutional” by the DeRolph v. State Supreme Court case. The way I can help is just by helping myself and my classmates in getting better grades and being academically successful. If I can do this, I won’t be able to make all school funding “constitutional,” but I will be able to help my school in such school funding inequities. If the students do better the school does better and if our school does better our community does better. Then our school will be efficiently funded. This is how I can overcome in my school and community.
