

Alyssa Buck (8th Grade)
Worthingway Middle School
Nathan Kellenberger, Principal
Michelle Charity, Teacher

For this contest, I chose a topic about what is going on in my school right now that I could help overcome. That is the theme of this contest, “We shall overcome”. There has been a game going on at my school where people are putting themselves into teams called “team light-skin” and “team dark-skin”. The students that are doing this racial team just say that it’s just a game and they are not hurting anyone. It is hurting people. They don’t want to be put into teams based on their skin complexion. For my project, I decided to copy the different skin complexions of my fellow classmates using paint and putting it all together as one person, leaving the game “team light-skin” and “team dark-skin” behind and living together just like Dr. King wanted.