My Martin Luther King, Jr. poster is a statement of freedom. The water color in the background of this poster represents ideas of how we can make the world better. I chose those colors because ideas are usually represented as being colorful. The reason that my poster has "free; I have a dream" on it is because I wanted to send a different message than being equal. Dr. King was not only about being equal, but he was also about being free too. Lots of people do not highlight that part, so I wanted to do something different and do just that.

The Journey is Not Complete
