Salvador Dali said, "A true artist is not one who is inspired, but one who inspires others." To help others spread goodwill and create a beloved community I turn to the arts. Whether it is performance, writing or drawing, art, for me, is a way to encourage myself and others to spread goodwill to anyone around us. I do this by singing at mass and prayer services in my school and parish community. I also participate in creative writing clubs, dance classes, band, and voice. I always motivate the people in these clubs and classes to perform to their full potential. To create a beloved community I encourage everyone to share their gifts whatever they may be. In conclusion, the arts are a way I can help others spread goodwill and a beloved community.

Beloved Community
